

Snow Hill Medical Center Welcomes New Health Care Provider

Gisela Stroud is the newest provider of medical care in Snow Hill.

Mrs. Stroud is a Family Nurse Practitioner (FNP) who practices Monday through Friday at Snow Hill Medical Center (SHMC), a community health center site of Greene County Health Care.

She comes to Snow Hill from UNC Lenoir Health Care in Kinston (formerly Lenoir Memorial Hospital), where she held the positions of staff nurse, manager and director in her nearly 31-year career there. Her career also includes three years as an FNP at Eastern Carolina Physicians in Kinston, a year as an emergency department staff nurse at Vidant Medical Center (formerly Pitt Memorial Hospital) and six years as an officer in the U.S. Navy. Mrs. Stroud also worked as an education coordinator in the Trust Territory of Pacific-Turk Island and as a staff nurse at Kinston Memorial Hospital.

She earned a bachelor of science in nursing and a master of arts in adult education from East Carolina University in Greenville. She also holds a master of science in nursing, FNP, from Duke University in Durham.

Mrs. Stroud and her husband Clarence live in Kinston. They have two adult children and a granddaughter. In her free time, Mrs. Stroud enjoys spending time with her family and learning “new and exciting” things.

Greene County Health Care (GCHC) is a community health center with sites in Greene, Pitt and Pamlico counties. GCHC provides medical, dental and behavioral health care. GCHC accepts insurance and offers care on a sliding fee scale to patients who qualify.
